

A little practice, a useful note.

One sheet for a few short sessions. Record what happened, then choose a comfortable next step. There is no streak to protect or schedule to finish.

Cat _____

Skill _____

Marker _____

Reward _____

Before you invite: prepare the reward, choose a quiet space, and decide which tiny action to mark. Your cat must be free to leave. After the marker, deliver the reward.

PRACTICE 1

Date / setting _____

One tiny action I invited:

What my cat did / signs of interest or discomfort:

Next time: repeat, make easier, change the setup, or pause?

PRACTICE 2

Date / setting _____

One tiny action I invited:

What my cat did / signs of interest or discomfort:

Next time: repeat, make easier, change the setup, or pause?

PRACTICE 3

Date / setting _____

One tiny action I invited:

What my cat did / signs of interest or discomfort:

Next time: repeat, make easier, change the setup, or pause?

Stop when your cat disengages or seems uncomfortable. A sudden change in appetite, movement or behavior needs veterinary advice, not a harder lesson.

Original Pounce observation sheet, based on our training curriculum. Training context: Cats Protection, "Tips for clicker training your cat" (linked in the guide). Educational; not a veterinary assessment.